

Emma K Doub Elementary School Take Home Device FAQ

What happens if a child forgets the device at home one night?

- Up to three instances child may borrow a unit from the media center. A log is kept by the Media Specialist. A reminder note is written in the child's planner by the classroom teacher.

What happens if a child forgets the device at home three nights?

- After forgetting to return the device three times, the child loses Take Home Privileges for a week. A note is written in the child's planner sharing that any further instances may lead to losing take home rights for the remainder of the school year.

What happens if a child violates the agreement by downloading apps?

- Teacher can opt to remove the App Store using device Restrictions.

What happens if a child forgets to charge the device before coming to school?

- There are 20 portable chargers in the media center that can be signed out if iPad is lower than 10% charge.
- A reminder note will be written in the child's planner by the classroom teacher.
- Ongoing failure to charge the device in the evening may result in temporary suspension of take home privileges.

What happens if a family member wants to use the iPad?

- Student use only at this time. Take home rights can be revoked if there is evidence that someone other than the student is using the iPad for non-educational purposes.

How does a teacher account for homework assignments for students who do and who do not have iPads going home?

- Homework will be designed to address students who take home iPads, students who use a home device, and students not taking home a device.

Do iPads go home on weekends?

- iPad chargers should go home on Mondays and must be returned on Fridays in order to charge over the weekend. iPads do not go home on the weekends unless a teacher assigns a long-range project or has made arrangements with a parent for work completion.

Can iPads be used on the bus?

- iPads may be used on the bus per county policy regarding electronic devices. Digital citizenship training with students will include a portion that discusses appropriate use at home and on the bus.